A World Apart: The Journal of a Gulag Survivor (Polish: Inny świat: zapiski sowieckie) is a memoir written by Gustaw Herling-Grudzinski, combining various literary genres: novel, essay, psychological portrait, as well as sociological and political esgrimaperezghersi.comher: Arbor House. "A World Apart" is a classic of the postwar emigration. Gustaw Herling was a year-old student when Hitler and Stalin jointly invaded and then partitioned Poland in September, He wound up in the Soviet zone and, along with million compatriots, was deported to Siberia.

In , after Poland was annexed by the Soviet Union, Polish writer Herling, then 21, was arrested on several false charges and placed first in a Russian prison, then in a slave-labor camp.

A well-deserved first American edition of memoirs published in Europe in Herling's story is at once heroic and human; his accounts are both systematically detailed and bitterly vital. The volume is a fit companion to Dostoyevsky and Solzhenitsyn in documenting the tragic history of Soviet. An account of the author's experience in a Soviet labor camp after Russia annexed Poland at the start of World War II, this book examines the daily life--appalling living conditions, grueling labor, perverse sexual abuse, and unlikely friendships--of the.
