They ceaselessly trace even the foundations of the world to contraries: the tension between Strife and Love. Although later philosophers developed their fragmented ideas, this primal awe and love of origins carried down through the ages until it crept into the notebooks and poetry of Gerard Manley Hopkins. And naked shingles of the world. In this dark, melancholic, skeptical background of Victorian England, Gerard Manley Hopkins poetry presents an image of God as a prolific Creator, loving Father, and consummate Artist who blesses man with abundant gifts of beauty to inspire and uplift the heart and soul.
